Sehr geehrte Damen und Herren, liebe Kolleginnen und Kollegen, wir möchten Sie hiermit einmal ganz herzlich zum Seminar unseres EU-Projekts "Varieties in Industrial Relations in Aviation Lockdown" einladen. Der Titel unseres Seminars lautet:

Neo-Liberal Turbulence in the Skies - Industrial Relations in the German and Danish Aviation industry

Associate Professor Steen Erik Navrbjerg, FAOS, University of Copenhagen

Dr. Michael Whittall, Friedrich-Alexander-Universität, Erlangen-Nürnberg, Deutschland

As part of a two-year project involving seven European member states (Denmark, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Poland, and Spain) examining the impact of Covid-19 on labor relations in the airline industry, Steen Navrbjerg and Michael Whittall discuss how neoliberal policies have affected industrial relations in their respective countries. Although the presentations illustrate how the emergence of low-cost airlines have undermined the power of unions since the mid-1990s, Navrbjerg and Whittall contend that the pandemic and resulting industry-wide lockdown have helped to highlight the weakness of such a neoliberal model. This raises the question of whether trade unions' stock is on the rise again in the airline industry.
